Shanghai Waigaoqiao Free Trade Zone

Shanghai Waigaoqiao Free Trade Zone, whose establishment was approved by the State Council in June 1990, is the earliest and largest Free Trade Zone in China, which integrates such economic functions as free trade, export processing, logistics and warehousing, and duty-free commodities exhibition and trading, with the planning area of 10 square kilometers, 6.4 square kilometers of which have been developed for operation thus far.

After a decade's development and construction, as of the end of 2000, the Free Trade Zone had accumulatively approved 4,383 investment projects and attracted total investment of USD5.351 billion from 58 countries and regions across the world.

Lingang Special Area of the China (Shanghai) Pilot Free Trade

The development of Lin-gang Special Area is to start with Nanhui New Town, Lin-gang Equipment Industrial Zone, Xiaoyangshan Island and the southern part of Shanghai Pudong International Airport, etc. Lin-gang Special Area is located in the Southeast of Shanghai, with Shanghai Pudong International Airport on its north and Yangshan International Port on its south. It is an important node on Shanghai Coastal thoroughfare. Waterways, air routes, railways, highways, inland rivers and subway constitute a very convenient integrated transportation system, which is a big advantage of Lin-gang Special Area. The Special Area will establish a relatively institutional system featuring the liberalization and facilitation of investment and trade, set up functional platforms with higher openness, and enabled the area to become a business cluster world-class enterprises.
